YEAR'S BIG BLAZE BURNS INK PLANT

Hundreds of interested citizens joined in a mad dash across fields and through the streets Monday to the plant of the American Manganese Products Co. to view the biggest fire which has visited this section in years. The fire was in one of the buildings of the company and resulted from the explosion of overheated, inflamable chemicals used in the manufacture of rotogravure ink.

The building was used as an experimental plant by the company which is completing a process for the production of a superior grade of rotogravure ink. A boiler was used in which the materials used in the manufacture were heated, and in the building also were vats of oils used in the process.

The conflagration is supposed to have started from a batch of oil which was being heated in the boiler and to have exploded. The first explosion was immediately followed by the detonation of the other tanks of oil, and within a few minutes the whole structure was a roaring cauldron of flames. A call was immediately sent to the fire department which responded with every available piece of apparatus.

The building in which the fire originated is one of a group of structures built during the war and used at that time as an aeroplane factory by the Christoferson Aviation Co. An aeroplane hangar in the rear of the building is still used for aviation purposes, and contained three machines at the time of the fire. These machines were run out to a point of safety, a precaution which proved unnecessary, as the fire department was able to save the hangar, although it was on fire at several times. The other buildings of the plant were also saved.

The direction of the wind was in favor of the department as the flames were swept across the aviation field and away from the other buildings of this plant but the large gasoline storage tanks of the petroleum company across the road would also have been enveloped and would no doubt have been destroyed.

As it was the firemen were busy for more two hours and all their efforts were necessary to prevent the spread of the flames. A high power electric line which supplied the plant wiht power was cut to remove the danger from this source.

Only two men were in the plant at the time of the fire. One of these, John Daly, was slightly burned by one of the explosions. The loss to the company which is conservatively estimated at $30,000 is said to be covered by insurance, but this does not cover the loss of time in the perfection of their product.

The company has been at work here for about three years on the development of a fine grade of ink for rotogravure work. The process has finally been completed, and it was expected that shipment of the new ink would be made within a week. It was in the preparation of this shpiment that the materials were being made which resulted in the fire. The experimental plant has been maintained here by Emeory Winship, wealthy San Francisco man, and was under the supervision of George Knights, a chemist.

Court to Decide Thurs.

HEARING ON FLOOD WILL CONTINUED

The demurrers filed by the Flood heirs to the petition of Constance May Gavin as a partial distribution of the James L. Flood estate were argued in the Superior court on Thursday. Garret McEnerney for the Flood estate made an eloquent address in support of his demurrers while A. O'Grady argued opposed him with a forcible speech. Judge Buck asked the demurrers to be submitted and that he would make a decision on Thursday next. By the demurrers it is sought to compel Mrs. Gavin to definitely state and set forth (a) when and where she was born; (b) the name of her mother; (c) whether she claims that her moth er was the wife of James L. Flood; (d) whether she claims she was born a legitimate or an illegitimate daughter; (e) and if illegitimate how she was subsequently legitimated.

McEnerney in support of his motion recited the Robert Mil case tried in the Superior court over a quarter of a century ago Robert Chatham in that case en deavored to break the will of Mills and won in the lower court but an appeal was taken and Chatham was defeated.

Should the contention of Mc Enerney be taken and demurrers sustained the petition of Mrs Gavin will have to be amended.

Makin' Friends

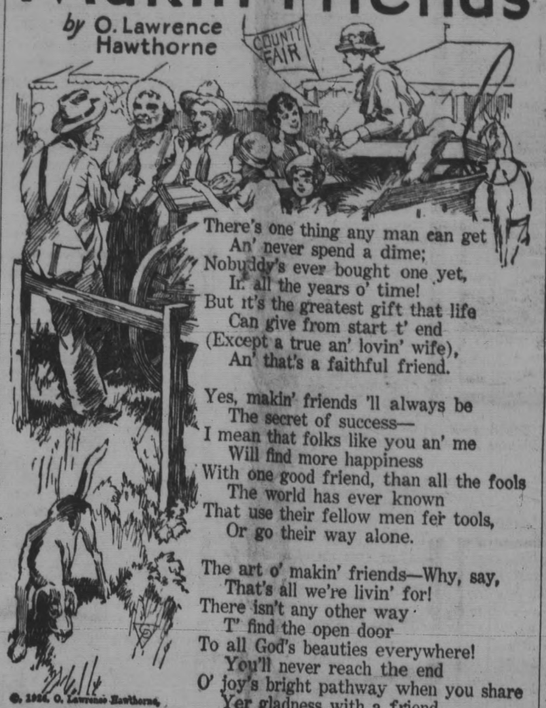
by O. Lawrence Hawthorne



There's one thing any man can get
An' never spend a dime;
Nobuddy's ever bought one yet,
In all the years o' time!
But it's the greatest gift that life
Can give from start t' end
(Except a true an' lovin' wife),
An' that's a faithful friend.

Yes, makin' friends 'll always be
The secret of success—
I mean that folks like you an' me
Will find more happiness
With one good friend, than all the fools
The world has ever known
That use their fellow men fer tools,
Or go their way alone.

The art o' makin' friends—Why, say,
That's all we're livin' for!
There isn't any other way
T' find the open door
To all God's beauties everywhere!
You'll never reach the end
O' joy's bright pathway when you share
Yer gladness with a friend.

INCORPORATION OF MENLO PARK WILL BE HEARD

OCTOBER 17 SETE AS DATE FOR HEARING REVISED PETITION

The board of supervisors on Monday set October 17 as the date for hearing the revised petition for the incorporation of Menlo Park as a city of the sixth class. The petition for incorporation was ordered revised to exclude all unsubdivided property.

A continued hearing on the original petition was given on Monday and additional protests were received from land holders in the territory embraced by the original petition. Protests were received from Sarah and E. Enten, owners of ten and three quarters acres on Middle avenue and from Frances and James S. McClymond, owners of 16 acres contigous to Atherton. Both protestants were represented by Hall C. Ross.

Geo. Walsh of Menlo Park addressed the baord in oppositior to the exclusion of the property J. J. Harcum and F. B. Cain, two of the circulators of the petition asked that all unsubdivided territory be excluded to avoid a condition similar to that which occured in Belmont, and which resulted in the disincorporation of that town. Attorney Joseph Gordon also spoke in favor of excluding all acreagae property which had not petitioned to be included. If the town became incorporated, he stated, owners could at any time ask for annexation of their property.

In regard to the McClymond property, District Attorney Swart stated that the owners of this property had already asked to be taken into Atherton and that as long as this matter was pending before the board of trustees o that town the board of supervisors would have no jurisdiction in the matter.

A revised description excluding all disputed property was prepared by County Engineer George Kneese, and the hearing for this petition will be held on the 17th of this month.

FIRE RAZES COOK HOME

EMERALD LAKE HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

The settling of a house on the side of a hill, and the consequent bending of a gas pipe is thought to have been the cause of a fire which early Tuesday morning resulted in the complete destruction of the home of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Cook of this city. It is supposed that in settling a gas pipe in the house had been bent and split, resulting in a leak of the gas which caught fire from the pilot light of the water heater.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook were on their way to town to open up their store on Main street when they met the fire truck. They turned around to follow the truck and see where the fire was, only to find their own home in flames The building was of light frame construction, and was so far gon that nothing could be saved from the flames. Their loss is partially covered by insurance.

LAST SAILING SHIP BUILT FOR SALE

Time was when the bay on a fair day was resplendent with the white sails of busy craft which plied their way from port to port along the rock-reefed California coast, and on a breezy morning the "cheerily men, yo ho" of many a stout and brave crew could be heard from any quay of this busy bay. That was before the smokey luggers and steam dories filled the air with smoke, and before the tramp steamer and turbined liner crowded the brig, barque and schooner from the paths of commerce. That was when Caroline Whipple, Dashaway and other brave boats were made in Redwood City and spread white canvas on the bay and when Captain Jens Hanson used to make models while on shore of the great ships which he sailed while at sea.

Today the captain, in his 92nd year stays ashore and spends his time watching an occasional motor boat or light-riding duck boat in the creek, and going over the sails and yards of the last square rigged four master ever to carry canvas in Redwood City.

The ship is only a little over four feet long, and is perfect in every respect. It is a true copy of the square-rigged four masted ships which three quarters of a century ago were doubling the Horn and dropping anchor in every corner of the globe.

Every yard, the captain will tell you, is in its right place, and every sail is bent to its proper arm, and every line belayed and made fast. It's as sea worthy a boat as ever sailed, and if it were a litte bigger—but there it sits a model, a relic of an age that is past and one of the last survivors of the most romantic age of the sea.

But the captain can no longer go to sea and the little model sitting idly in its case will not return laden with Oriental treasures from far off Cathy or the Isles of Ind, so it must be sold. The captain thinks his little ship would be a fitting ornament to some club or shipping office and is offering it for sale. If sold, Redwood will lose the last of its relics of the day when ships were made and sailed from here and returned heavy laden after long voyages.

Mark Ryan Exchange Speaker

Chief Mark Ryan of the Redwood City Fire Department was the chief speaker Tuesday evening before the Redwood City Exchange Club. Ryan gave an interesting and instructive talk on fire prevention, this week being observed as National Fire Prevention Week.

The needs of the fire department in this city were succintly stated by Chief Ryan. The chief need of the town, he stated, was a fire house on the west side of the highway. This would obviate the necessity for crossing the railroad tracks and the busy highway for calls on the west side of the city. Another need mentioned was adequate equipment for the carrying of ladders. The present ladder truck is an old car which became obsolete for any other use and was given to the fire department. Ryan also gave a demonstration of the way in which an alarm should be turned in, and home hints in regard to what to do in case of a fire. A number of the firemen were guests of the club.

The chairman of the meeting was Sam Steen.

PIONEER BUTTER MERCHANT DIES IN HOSPITAL

Alfred Helms, who passed away at the Community hospital last week, was widely known in this community, having lived in the county for over forty years. At the time of his death Helms was 85 years old. A good portion of his life was spent with the Twombly family on their ranch at La Honda and the Alpine district. For many years Helms came from San Gregorio selling butter to housewives here. He was always polite, considerate and honest in his dealings. Numerous old timers will recall the kindly man who furnished butter to Redwood City a quarter of a century ago. Helms was the last of his race, a sturdy stock that blazed the trail across the plains in the days of old to establish a commonwealth on the Pacific Coast that will endure for all time because it was builded well by a strong and verile class of men to which Helms belonged.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The cost of living should drop materially in California during the next three months if prices quoted the state by wholesale houses may be taken as a criterion, according to State Purchasing Agent W. G. McMillin. On the whole the quotations for the new quarters were lower than three months ago, McMillin said, although prices were higher for meats and a few other articles of food.

Gold that promises to develop into the West's richest strike in recent years has been discovered in the Piute Mountains, 260 miles east of Los Angeles. The discovers of the ledge are Henry Mulheisen, veteran desert prospector, and Mark Pettit, who has sold his interest. Assays from the discovery shaft show a gold content in quartz ranging from $179 to $800 a ton. The ledge has been opened at two points 300 feet apart, samples equally rich at both shafts and indicates great depth.

A falling off of nearly 200 in the number of marriage licenses issued in San Francisco for September last, as compared with September, 1926, is shown in the monthly report of Recorder Edmond Godchaux, issued last week. Attaches of the license clerk's office declare that the new State three-day marriage license law, requiring prospective brides and grooms to file notice of their intention to marry, is the cause of the reduction in marriages. The recorder's report shows that 528 marriage certificates were issued in September of this year. In September, 1926, the total for the month was 738.

Kaweah delta property owners near Visalia, will vote November 5 on the question of forming the Kaweah Delta Water Conservation District, the first proposal in California under the new State law. Despite quiet periods in several basic industries, California's net industrial income increased 418 per cent between 1919 and 1925, according to figures made public by the California Development Association's research department. The figures show that the state's net income from agriculture, lumbering, fishery products, mineral and manufactures was $2,147,501,000, as compared with $513,657,000 in 1909. "Heavy drinking" is more prevalent in California today than it was in 1918 and the death toll charged up to acute alcoholism is soaring toward pre-prohibition levels, L. E. Ross, chief of the state bureau of vital statistics, declared in an analysis of alcoholic mortality reports. The number of deaths from alcoholism, from the statistical standpoint, is a true index to the number of people who are drinking to excess, asserted Ross. Judged from the mortality tables, there is more excessive drinking now under complete prohibition than in 1918, when we had only partial prohibition.

Bert M. Meek, State director of public works, last week awarded highway contracts involving expenditure of more than $600,000 in five counties. California's newly created State Tax Commission, which met at the Capitol last week for the first time, went on record as being opposed to making any change in the Federal tax laws that would react on California's State tax system. Kern River district, one of the oldest producers of oil in California, continues to put forth the greatest effort in development of new wells as indicated in the weekly report of the state oil and gas supervisor. With the announcement of the board of directors of the Keystone Mines that plans are now under way to shortly start operations at this group of mines at Amador City, Amador County, the people of that community are looking to a revival of prosperous growth. The town of Amador City has practically been deserted for a number of years but the revival of mining activities in this group will mean the general revival of the entire mining industry in that part of Amador County.

In 37 shots fired in 32 minutes Terry Flannagan, prominent Stockton American Legion man, bagged 25 ducks on the opening morning of the duck season. He crept into his blind a few minutes before sunrise, and a few minutes later began blazing away. "The ducks were as thick as bees," said Flannagan.

Three hours from San Francisco to Los Angeles by air—in huge, three-motored airplanes, wherein the passengers will be served with lunch, and will get magazines, newspapers, radio reports during their trip. This is the promise held out to Californians for early next year, in the announcement last week that financial arrangements had been completed between the Western Air Express and the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics.

Constant increase in the prosperity of California was evidenced last week in an announcement by State Controller Ray L. Riley at Sacramento, placing the assessed value of property in the State at $7,647,607 for this year, a gain of $482,567,663 over last year. The actual value of California property however, is about $15,000,000,000, Riley said and the gain for the year about $1,000,000,000, as the assessments represent only about 50 per cent of true valuation. The total reported on by the controller includes all real estate, improvements, money and solvent credits in the State's fifty-eight counties.

All previous records in California for veterans' homes and farms financed by the veteans' welfare board were broken during September, when 215 farms and homes were financed. This represents a total investment of $1,022,700. The purchases were divided almost evenly between the northern and southern portions of the state, the allocations being $561,000 and $441,300, respectively. The San Francisco Bay section investments represent a total of $382,750. Farms and homes purchased by the state for World War veterans were brought to a total of 3,526, costing $16,592,200, by the September investments.

Why should California's women criminals live in idleness at San Quentin prison while good housewives toil and spin? Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, chief of the State department of social service, and only woman in the pubernatorial cabinet of nine, put this question up to Governor C. C. Young and the eight men directors at the regular monthly cabinet meeting called by the State executive last week. "The women prisoners should be self-supporting," the woman director maintained, "and the department of social service is prepared to make a survey of the conditions at the State penitentiary with a view to installing some industry there for the 100 or more women inmates."

What is described as "one of the most important fossil finds ever made in California," has been unearthed in asphalt beds at Carpinteria, near Santa Barbara, it was announced last week by University of California experts. R. W. Chaney of the university's paleo-botanical staff and Herbert L. Mason, professor of botany, inspected the new fossil fields. They report fossils of prehistoric leaves, flowers and fruits, as well as many kinds of animals and now-extinct birds. The fossils are exceptionally well preserved.

The eighth annual convention of the California Association of Highway Patrolmen will be held in Los Angeles October 18, 19 and 20, and those in charge of the meeting declare that many matters dealing with traffic conditions and their betterment will be taken up.

The remains of the old schooner "Mary Glasgow," that in the early 50's operated in the Sonoma creek and later was deserted by a crew of Argonauts en route to El Dorado in search of gold, was unearthed by a crew of men who commenced bridge construction near Schellville, Sonoma county.

EASY LESSONS IN AUCTION BRIDGE

Article Five.

The Original Bid

NOW we are ready to give the definite requirements for an original bid of one of a suit.

A bid of one contracts to take seven tricks—one odd, or one over the book of six. If dealer has four tricks in his hand and the remaining nine are evenly distributed between the other three players, his partner would hold three of them, and together they could take the one odd. Therefore, the general requirement for a bid of one is four sure tricks.

When dealer is considering a bid he knows absolutely nothing regarding the other hands, and so has a right to assume that the winning cards which he does not hold are evenly divided among the other three players. If dealer passes, second hand finds himself in practically the same situation. The only added information which he has is that one of his opponents, the dealer, does not hold four sure tricks. Therefore, the requirements for a bid by dealer or by second hand after dealer has passed are just the same and are as follows:

An Original Bid of a Suit

To bid one of a suit, that suit should be of four or more cards with three sure tricks, and the hand as a whole should contain two quick tricks (four probable tricks).

This rule is very simple and only needs a few illustrations to fix it in the mind of anyone learning the game.

The A K Q and one small card is the only four-card combination, and the A K and three small cards, A Q J and two small ones, and K Q J and two small ones are the only five-card combinations which contain two quick tricks, and as they will also take four sure tricks they may be bid without any outside strength.

Any other five-card combination headed by the Ace or the King, Queen—that is by one quick trick—may be bid if the hand also contains one quick trick in a side suit. Any five-card suit headed by the Queen, Jack, Ten, requires two outside quick tricks because the trump suit contains none.

If a suit which is to be bid lacks a part of the specific requirements a bid may still be made provided the hand contains enough extra strength to compensate for this lack. For instance, a four-card suit such as A K and two small ones, or A Q J and one small one, or K Q J and one small one, or a six-card suit which contains only one-half a quick trick like K and five small ones, or Q J 10 and three small ones, may be bid with one outside quick trick.

An Original Bid of One No Trump

The simple requirements for a bid of one no trump by dealer or second hand are: (1) Two quick tricks with three suits protected or (2) Four quick tricks in two suits.

The following examples will illustrate:

(1) S—A, x x x; H—K, x x x; D—K, x x; C—x x;—2 quick tricks.

(2) S—A, x x x; H—K, Q, x; D—Q, J, x; C—x x x;—2½ quick tricks.

(3) S—A, K, x; H—x x x; D—A, K, x x; C—x x x;—4 quick tricks.

(4) S—A, K; H—x x x; D—A, K, Q, x x; C—x x x;—4½ quick tricks.

No. (1) is absolutely the minimum strength upon which a no trump may be bid. This type of hand may cause the beginner some trouble because having only one Ace and two Kings it may be difficult to see how it can produce four tricks which are the requisites for any bid. It is a well-known fact in other games as well as in Auction that the cards held by the one playing the hand—in Auction, the declarer—are of greater value than the same ones would be when held by the opponents or, in other words, the offensive strength of cards is greater than their defensive strength; thus the quick trick values as already given, which have been worked out for the defensive, may be doubled to obtain the probable tricks offensively held. Therefore, two quick tricks are valued as four probable tricks offensively played.

No. (2) requires no explanation. Having 2½ quick tricks it can be counted for five probable offensive tricks, making a good no trump bid.

No. (3) is entirely too strong to pass as it contains four quick tricks; one no trump would make a better bid than one diamond. The same is true of No. (4) although the diamond suit is still stronger.

If this four or five-card suit were a major it should be bid in preference to a no trump; but no trump should be bid rather than a minor in all such hands.

Bird's Sharp Eyes

After experiments by scientists in Great Britain several conclusions were reached about the ability of birds to see, says Nature Magazine. Among these are: A thrush sees a worm writhing in grass 100 yards off. A sparrow 50 yards away sees a dropped crumb or pea and immediately darts to it. The swallow, skimming along 40 miles an hour, marks down gnats 100 yards ahead. A hawk, poised 300 feet above a tangled brake, detects a mouse through heavy growth. Eagles and vultures possess supertelescopic sight and their vision is even keener.

Tapestry Warp

Usually the warp in tapestries is of hemp. The pattern is usually made of colored wool threads, although threads of gold and silver are sometimes added to give richness. Silk is used in China.

Then Ten Miles—Now 20 Minutes

SOME years ago it was ten miles to the next town. Now it is less than twenty minutes.

When the next town was ten miles miles instead of twenty minutes away the people of the home community were willing to accept such merchandising methods as Jones and Brown and Smith offered them. People could not be too particular about the cleanliness of the local stores, about the quality or the variety of the merchandise carried about the sales ability of Jones and Brown and Smith and their clerks.

When the next town was ten miles away the only competitors of Jones, Brown and Smith were the mail-order houses. It was a case of buy in the home town or from the mail-order houses. That ten miles of soft mud road, and the slow, lumbering wagons of the period protected the home trade of Jones, Brown and Smith. That ten miles of mud kept the people of town at home, it kept their interest centered in the home community.

Today the ten miles of distance has been changed to less than twenty minutes of time; the mud roads have been changed to concrete, the slow, lumbering wagon has given way to the automobile, and Black, Green and White in the next town have become competitors of Jones, Brown and Smith. The next town is as near today as was Main street in the home town a few years ago. Good roads and the automobile have annihilated the fortifications that protected Jones, Brown and Smith but a few years ago.

All of these things mean radical changes in the social and commercial life of the nation. It means the pregressive communities are going forward, the unprogressive ones are going backward. It means that communities must strive as never before if they are to live. The dead town filled with dead merchants, with dead people, has no place in the picture of the future.

There is a distinct place for the newspaper in these changed conditions. It is the local community newspaper that must lead its community out of the darkness of the era of mud into the light of the present era of concrete. It must lead the way to progress that means a better town, better merchandising methods on the part of the merchants, co-operation between all elements of the community working together for the benefit of all. It should lead in organizing social activities that will attract people to the town. It should lead in the installation of "movie" shows, and the production of good pictures. It should encourage and support the activities of the churches. The newspaper representative of the community that is to live in these days of fierce competition can no longer content itself with chronicling the things that happen, it must make things happen.

In hundreds of towns there have been organized within the past year community advertising campaigns, selling the community to itself, stimulating co-operation between its people, advocating community betterments, community trade, prompt payment of obligations and the hundred and one things that are needed to arouse the community and cause it to keep pace with the progressive spirit of the age. The newspapers start these campaigns, but the people of the communtiy pay for them ,and through them aid materially in supporting the newspaper in return for the service the newspaper is rendering the community. It is but one of the hundreds of ways in which the newspapers can and must lead the community out of the mud and onto the concrete.

It is a fast age. Possibly faster than many of us appreciate, but we must keep pace with its speed or go down under the wheels. This is true of the community as well as of the individual. It is a day of community leadership for the newspaper, and the ones that do not, or cannot, assume that leadership are going down.

One Million Dollars to be Represeted by Stockholders of Three Large Institutions

The world's largest aggregation of banking capital, possessed by a single financial group, either in the United States or any foreign country, will be assembled by the stockholders of the Bank of Italy organizations, according to plans announced this week.

A total capital investment of approximately $500,000,000 and with a market value in excess of One Billion Dollars will be represented by the three institutions, Bank of Italy, National Bankitaly Company and Bancitaly Corporation. The stockholders of Bank of Italy and of National Bankitaly Company are identical, the two institutions being owned share for share by the same individuals, and the ownership evidened by one certificate. Bancitaly Corporation, while an entirely distinct unit, numbers among its stockholders a great many of those who are also stockholders of Bank of Italy. The three corporations have, in all, some 75,000 stockholders.

In perfecting the capital structure contemplated under the present program, the boards of directors of the Bank of Italy and National Bankitaly Company authorized a $90,000,000 increase in the present capitalization, from $30,000,000, represented by 1,200,000 shares, to $50,000,000, represented by 2,000,000 shares. The capital stock of National Bankitaly Company will be increased from $12,000,000 to $20,000,000. Payment of a 25% stock dividend amounting to 300,000 shares to stockholders of record October 25, has been approved, and of the remaining 500,000 shares, 250,000 will be offered to present stokholders at $180 per share. The balance of 250,000 will be sold to Bancitaly Corporation, at the same figure.

Stockholders of record November 12, will have the right to subscribe to the new issue, on the basis of one share for each six then owned. Certificates for the 25% stock dividend will be prepared prior to November 12, and will participate in the rights. Issuance of the new shares sold at $180 will be about March 15 1928, but will participate in the dividend from the first of the year.

The present dividend of $5.24 per share will be maintained on the shares issued under the stock dividend. This is equivalent to a 25% increase in the dividend rate, and represents an annual return of $26.20 to stockholders o the original $100 par value stock.

The board of directors of the Bank of Italy, in approving the capital increase, pointed out that it has always been the policy of the institution to make the capital keep pace with the growth in deposits. In the case of National Bankitaly Company, the additional capital will permit them to handle business of a character, formerly enjoyed by the Bank of Italy during the years that it was a State Bank, but which now, under the provisions of its charter as a National Bank must be diverted to National Bankitaly Company.

On the basis of the authorized capital additions the Bank of Italy and National Bankitaly Company will each have invested capital in excess of $100,000,000 making a combined total of over $200,000,000.

A letter describing the complete details of the action is being mailed to all stockholders.

NO MAIL TODAY

by O. LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE

She stood in line a long, long time
Before the moment came
For her to face the window bars
And tell the clerk her name.
Still hopeful, yet with eyes that ached,
She saw him shake his head
"There ought to be a letter h
Please look once more!" she said.

"No mail today!" Oh, what a stab
Of heartache or despair
Is often felt by one who hears
Those words! For everywhere—
In city, village, on the farm—
Folks ask and wait and pray
For letters that will never come.
"No mail for you today!"

Perhaps there is a heart that longs
To hear a word from you;
Perhaps your letter is among
Those sadly overdue.
Why don't you make it possible
For someone to exclaim:
"I knew there should be mail for me!
At last my letter came!"

Cheese Products are Gaining

The "Watch on the Rind" sounds a new note in California's agricultural production, according to R. E. Kelly, manager of development for Southern Pacific, who sees new opportunities for farmers to profit through cheese making.

"Far-seeing farmers," Kelly said, "are watching with interest the growing and profitable production of cheese and butter in California, and many are turning to dairying as a dependable source of income.

"Cheese and butter production in Modoc county, where rail transportation had been limited to a narrow gauge road, has increased more than 100 percent since 1922 Standard-guaging of the Nevada-California-Oregon railroad will in the near future provide a direct outlet for the county's products and a considerable expansion in butter and cheese production is anticipated.

"California is one of the few states in the Union that is buying its dairy products from other states and the Pacific Coast will readily absorb a growing volume of home dairy products."

Audit is Made of State

Special to the Times-Gazette
By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENTO, October 11—That great corporation, the State of California, has physical assets valued at approximately $15,000,000,0000.

It boasts 5,000,000 stokholders, its citizens.

Its wealth, figured on this basis, aggregates $3,000 per capita, including thousands of children not yet arrived at the age of production.

Such are the highlights of the annual governmental audit of California, the corporation, as announced by State Controller Ray L. Riley, who deals only with money values. Human values have no place in the audit. It is purely a business matter, stripped of all sentiment. And as a business proposition entity California is a "going concern," paying big dividends.

The assessed value placed on all property in the state's 58 counties is $7,647,025,607, which is about half of the real value, Riley says.

California real estate alone the controller reports, has an assessed valuation of $3,510,690,531, indicting a true value of about $7,000,000,000, or half the state's wealth. The value of improvements will total nearly $4,000,000, based on an assessed valuation of $1,963,273,052.

Personal property, comparatively, is a small item, aggregating only $942,039,366 in assessed value. Money and solvent credits, totaling $48,286,834, as assessed, is the smallest item in the list.

Railroads are assessed at $328,810,084.

Here are the results of the state check-up on the wealth, debts, etc. of some of the leading producing counties—the districts that feed the cities.

San Mateo—wealth, $100,400,000; county debt, $994,086; tax rate (inside) $2.48; (outside) $2.98.

Sanislaus—wealth, $120,000,000; debt, $1,251,000; tax rate, inside, $1.80; outside, $2.20.

Santa Clara—wealth, $260,000,000; debt, 200,000; tax rate (inside, $1.72; (outside) $2.16.

San Diego—wealth, $265,000,000; county debt, $3,555,000; tax rate (inside) $3.06; (outside) $3.78.

Solano — wealth, 80,000,000; county debt, 80,000; tax rate, (inside) 1.83; (outside) $2.23.

Merced — wealth $82,000,000 county debt, $1,123,000; tax rate, (inside) $2.55; (outside) $3.05.

Marin— wealth, $62,000,000; county debt, $1,250,000; tax rate, (inside) $2.31; (outside) 2.76.

Lassen—wealth, $37,000,000; county debt, $94,200; tax rate, (inside) $1.72; (outside) $2.20.

L. E. Ross, chief of the bureau of vital statistics, is inclined to take into his calculations the phase of the equation which the controller, as a fiscal agent, can not consider—humn values.

It is the duty of Ross to keep the chart of how the human family is progressing in California and he knows his subject.

"The true value of a person.. to society," Ross says at the outset, " is the amount of wealth he produces in excess of what he consumes."

Then this statistical psychologist sets down that we begin consuming wealth as soon as we are born and continue until de die, but we do not start, on an average to produce a little wealth until age 14. As time goes on, says Ross, we produce a little more until at about 20 years of age the average man is self-supporting. But he is still deeply in debt to the world for all the wealth consumed up to that time.

It is at age 32, in most cases, that the average man evens his account with the world—when a consumption matches production. Then, for the balance of life, or the balance of working years, we pile up our contribution to the world's surplus, says the statistician.

Kiwanians Hear Talk of Foreign Debt Situation

W. H. Marvin, an international la wstudent who was the legal advisor of the American mission t both the Paris and the Geneva peace conference, as well as in attendance at the Hague, was the speaker Wednesday at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club. Marvin's topic was the matter of the settlement of the international debt question, and the attitude of the United States in the matte

The various nations of Europe were taken up one by one as well as the situation in the South American countries. In the latter Marvin stated the United States is viewed with fear and mistrust. In France also, Marvin stated, there is a decided feeling against the United States and there is no intention of paying the debt owed by that country. The recent tariff was cited as an instance of this feeling.

Marvin spoke highly of the British people and urged a greater understanding between the two nations. An Anglo-Saxon union, he stated, would do more for world peace than any league of nations ever could accomplish. Russia, he stated, is slowly awakening, and could be helped if the government of this county could be brought to recognize the Soviet government. Germany is recovering from the war, and Marvin spoke highly of the present government. President Hindenburg, he said, contrary to all expectations, has made a great and wise president, and has done much for Germany in the reconstruction period.

Marvin urged more business and less oratory in international relations, and while favoring consideration for the rights of other nations, warned the Kiwanians against a type of sentimentality which is as destructive of international accord as militarism it self.

Give Warning Against Boulevard Stops

Indiscriminate and injudicious establishment of boulevard stop rules will do more harm than good and will bring an increase in the accident hazard. City and county officials throughout Northern and Central California are being given this warning advice by the California State Automobile Association, which is taking this step in an effort to curb excessive enthusiasm for establishment of the "stop" rule.

A study of the situation made by the Automobile Association shows that in the wholesale establishment of arterial thoroughfares now taking place in some localities, ill-advised designation of arterial streets is increasing congestion and, without adequate and continuous enforcement, is increasing the accident hazard, particularly to pedestrians.

Explaning the Association's stand, James W. Johnson, association engineer in charge of road and street signing activities, said:

"Some communities establish arterial systems with the erroneous idea that the prime purpose of the boulevard stop rules is to increase public safety by decreasing the probability of crossing collisions.

"The real purpose of the plan is to speed up traffic on main arteries only, so that areas of great density of traffic may be relieved of congestion by getting the greatest number of vehicles past a given point in the shortest period of time. Experience has shown that the enforcement of boulevard stops is exceedingly difficult, and, without enforcement, the hazard really becomes greater instead of less, defeating the purpose for which it is generally used. When a street is designated as arterial, the motorist traveling on it cannot help but gain the impression that he is to be free of intersecting travel. Consequently, traffic speeds up and pays less attention to vehicles coming in from side streets.

"The situation likewise gives a false sense of security to pedestrians who expect vehicles to stop at intersections before entering the boulevard street. Experience shows that without enforcement the hazard to pedestrians is increased in this manner.

"Acquiescence of the public to such a regulation is essential to its successful enforcement and this cannot be secured unless the public is convinced of the reasonableness of the rule. Motorists continually reuired to stop by a boulevard sign for which they can see no justification soon acquire a feeling of resentment, and frequent evasions of the rule, with a consequent increase in traffic hazards, are the result.

SCHOLARSHIP OFFERED TO SEQUOIA STUDENTS

A Sequoia student will receive a $100 scholarship award from the members of the Women's Club of Redwood City. Although it is a scholarship, it is to be given in the form of a loan to be paid back at the winner's convenience. The money was derived from a fashion shown given last Thursday in which the latest styles were shown by Babette and models of the San Francisco Emporium.

It cannot yet be definitely stated as to whether the student body store will give an award. This will be announced next spring when the year's profit is ascertained.

The Sequoia Girls' Society will give an award, as they did last year to the girl who best fits their reuirements.

The members of the Exchange Club of Redwood City are also planning to give a scholarship.

The awards are given according to the general service and scholarship of the student applying, also their need for the money to continue their education beyond high school.

Said grades are referred to the official base and datum for said town established by said Board of Trustees ( now called Town Council) June 8th, 1926, being elevations in feet and decimals thereof above same.

Section 4. And whereas said contemplated work and improvement in the opinion of said Town Council is of more than local ordinary public benefit, said Town Council hereby makes the expense of said work and improvement chargeable upon a district, which district said Town Council hereby declares to be the district benefited by said work and improvement and to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses thereof; which said district is delineated and shown upon a map entitled: "Map Showing Assessment District under Resolution of Intension No. 9, for the improvement of Amador Avenue and Tuscaloosa Avenue, Town of Atherton, California," on file in the office of said Town Engineer of said Town and also in the office of the Town Clerk of said Town.

Section 5. Said Town Council hereby further declares that all streets, avenues, lanes, alleys, courts and places and public ways contained within the above described district, the same being in use in the performance of a public function as such shall be omitted from the assessment hereafter to be made to cover the costs and expenses of said work and improvement.

Section 6. Notice is hereby given that serial bonds to represent unpaid assessments, and bearing interest at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum, will be issued hereunder in the manner provided by the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, as amended, the last installment of which bonds shall mature nine years from the second day of July next succeeding ten months from their date.

Section 7. Except as hereinabove otherwise provided for the issuance of serial bonds, all of the above proposed work shall be done in pursuance of the Improvement Act of 1911, as amended.

Section 8. Notice is hereby given that on the 25th day of October, 1927, at eight o'clock p. m. at the regular meeting place of said Town Council, to wit, the Town Hall in said Town, any and all persons having any objections to the proposed work and improvement or to the grades at which said work is to be done or to the district to be assessed for the costs and expenses thereof may appear before said Town Council and show cause why said proposed improvement should not be carried out in accordance with this resolution.

Section 9. The Clerk of said Town shall cause this resolution of intention to be published twice in Times-Gazette, a newspaper published and circulated in said County of San Mateo, there being no newspaper published in said town which said newspaper is hereby designated for that purpose by said Town Council. Said clerk will also post a copy of said resolution of intention in three of the most public places in said town as required by said Improvement Act of 1911. The Street Superintendent of said Town shall cause to be conspicuously posted notices of the passage of said resolution of intention in the manner and form, and at the places required by law.

I hereby certify that the foregoing resolution was duly and regularly adopted by the Board of Trustees (now called Town Council) of the Town of Atherton at a regular meeting thereof held on the 4t day of October, 1927, by the following vote:

RECEPTION IS HELD FOR NEW PASTOR AND WIFE WED.

(Contributed)

The Methodist Episcopal church, Broadway and Brewster, was the scene Wednesday evening of a very representative gathering of the membership of the church and townspeople to welcome their new pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Winning. B. E. Myers, local layman, and city treasurer, was to have presided, but was confined to his home by illness. Mrs. C. W. Wise, chairman of the committee of the evening, presided.

Little Miss Thomasine Alexander read "My Shadow;" Donald Bogie , superintendent of the church school, spoke fitting words of welcome. Miss Mildred Iwerks played a piano solo, "Pizzacato" (Delibes). Mrs. C. W. Kinkaid, represented the women of the congregation in her very beautiful words to Dr. and Mrs. Winning. Mrs. J. Hall, assisted by Mrs. Anna B. Robb, presented Mrs. Winning a beautiful gift of a scarf and permanent flower, to which Mrs. Winning responded graciously.

A duet, "Rose of Picardy" was sung by Mrs. H. W. Treichel and Mrs. Beverly Davis. H. A. Beeger, mayor, welcomed the new minister to Redwood City in a very appropriate felicitation. Aleck M. Cuthbertson sang a baritone solo, "My Prayer" (Squire) with "The Armorer's Song" as encore. A. C. Argo, principal of Sequoia High School, brought the greetings of the school. John Layng represented the Kiwanis Club and the Chamber of Commerce. C. W. Wise spoke briefly bringing the welcome of the men of the church.

Representing the churches Rev. R. J. Curry of the Congregational church, and Rev. Weigle of the Episcopal church, wer present and brought messages of greeting from their respective bodies.

In a very fine and fervent way Dr. Winning responded with a message that bespoke a good leadership, saying that he realized that all these beautfiul words of welcome meant nothing but hard work. That the task of the minister was not an easy one, but a challenging one. He accepted the challenge and prophecied a period of happy service in this local field.

Among those present from out of town were the Winnings' son, Sam'l Winning and wife and their daughter, Mrs. W. C. Deering, all of San Francisco.

A Preacher's Life O'Graph

The reporter of this church reception interviewed the new minister, Dr. Winning and through personal inquiry gleaned the following facts: that he was born in Iowa, the son of a Methodist parson, his father, the late Rev. E. A. Winning, having been a minister for forty-eight years. He was educated in California, graduating from the College of the Pacific, also receiving his M. A. degree from the same institution. His Doctorate degree was taken in sociology in Milton University, Baltimore, M. D. He has held pastorates at Chico, Trinity church, San Francisco; Pacific Grove, Eureka, and some of the prominent churches in Idaho. He and his wife are the parents of four children—all married. Their two sons were officers in the World war, one is now a professor in New York University, the other an insurance broker in San Francisco; one daughter, the wife of a San Francisco banker; and the other recently of Shanghai, is now in New York City.

The mistress of the Manse—Mrs. Winning, was discovered to be a native daughter of California and is said by her personal charm and musical ability, always to make herself popular in the community in which her husband labors.

BE CAREFUL OF BATTERY FLUID

In testing the battery on your car with a hydrometer, be careful not to spill any of the fluid on your clothes or the upholstery of the car, advises the California State Automobile Association, as the acid will quickly eat a hole in the cloth.

FOUR OPERETTAS TO BE GIVEN AT HOMECOMING

Alumni at ending the Annual Homecoming on November 5th, as well as the general public, will be entertained free of charge by Mr. Carrington's music classes of Sequoia Union High School and the Bass and Treble Cleffs. Four operettas, "Freshies," "Lady Frances," "Heads Off" and "The Nifty Shop", will compose the program. The operettas are all comedies, two of which have plots dealing with college "frats" and sororities.

"Freshies" dramatically portrays the cleverness of three frosh who "put it over" on their upper classmen. The cast contains Calvin Wells, Norman Hollingsworth, Harry Gibson, who are football heroes; Arthur Lampkin, Edward Potts, Leslie Heald, are upperclassmen; James Esneault, Hubert Barry, Raymond Hollingsworth, as the clever frosh; Eugene Bone as a "Med" student; and Frank Archibald, as a law student.

"Lady Frances," also a collegiate operetta with the setting in a sorority, has a cast entirely of girls. The cast is as follows: Marguerite Shearer as "Lady Frances;" Bridget O'Harrigan as the "mystery;" and the rest of the college girl parts are taken by Bess Leggett, Carol Carrington, Olga Laurson, Kathleen Gish, Anna Kilkrist, La June Acord, Violet Schaler, Leota Carl, Mary Barretto, Carol Yearian, Evelyn Roberts and Marion Arnold.

"Heads Off" and "The Nifty Shop" are extremely laughable and entertaining. Eugene Bone, the king; Sam Enten, the victim; and Fronk Archibald, the headsman have the leads in "Heads Off." "The Nifty Shop" has Margaret Downs, Rosalie Carrington, Gertrude Gibson and Lillian Phinney. Three parts remaining have not been chosen as yet.

Mr. Carrington has already put a great amount of time on these operettas and expresses an opinion that they will be really entertaining.

NOW NEW NAMES FOR OFFICE HOLDERS

Special to the Times-Gazette
By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, October 11—Paris may be in doubt as to whether the new fall styles in skirts will be long or short, but California is adamant in regard to the new fall style of nomenclature of her fifth and sixth class cities.

No city can be so poor or old fashioned that it cannot afford a mayor according to the dictates of the 1927 legislature.

The humble days when "chairman of the board of trustees" was title enough for the chief of the town government have gone forever, "Mr. Mayor," he is, and nothing less.

Among those on whom the unexpected and unsolicited honors of the new glorified titles have fallen is C. L. Adsit, editor of the Vacaville Reporter, who is also city official of Vacaville.

Sixth class cities will no longer have to adopt city charters like Modesto in order to emancipate themselves from the "hick-town" titles, the state has promoted them whether they would or no.

Let not the speedster racing through South San Francisco or burning the highway through Redwood City salute the arresting officer as "town marshal" on pain of giving further offense, "chief of police" is the correct title from now on.

And if the young girl graduate would get a school in Sunnyvale or Livingston she must be sure to address the board of education and not the school trustees in the future.

The curfew is the only emblem of the old time city still left by our up-to-the-minute law-makers but by the time the legislature meets again we may expect a law passed "That the curfew shall not ring tonight."

Nash Motor Co. Announces Three New Popular Models

Three new models, each designed to meet a popular demand, are announced by the Nash Motors Company. The new cars are a Special Six 4-door coupe at $1445, f.o.b. factory, a Special Six 4-passenger Victoria at $1295, f.o.b. factory, and a Standard Six convertible Cabriolet at $995, f.o.b factory.

"With the addition of these new cars, the Nash line now embraces twenty-four distinctive models, all sizes, and ranging in price from $865 to $1990 f.o.b factory," says E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash Motors Company. "Each of the three new cars was designed especially to meet a demand for a car of its type and as with all other Nash models, these new cars are equipped with the Nash 7-bearing crankshaft motor."

In the Special Six 4-door Coupe, Nash presents a model of exceptional charm and utility. It is built for five passengers and is distinguished at first glance by its smart leather-finished back, its rakish front end visor and its handsome, in-built, nickel strapped custom trunk at the rear.

Upholstery is taupe mohair, deeply tufted which, together with the panelings of genuine walnut and fine hardware, add an air of luxury to the interior, a handsome vanity case and smoking set adding further to the convenience of the occupants and to the general atmosphere of the car.

The Victoria on the Special Six chassis is designed in that good taste which distinguishes Nash body craftsmanship. The color harmony is rich gray-green below the moulding, with black hood, black belt, black rear deck, and black top. Added charm is given this color combination by the nickeled head-lamps, cowl lamps and radiator shell.

In keeping with its striking outward appearance, the interior of the car is fitted and trimmed in good taste. The steering wheel is genuine walnut; the instrument board and panels are walnut finish, and the upholstery is genuine mohair in harmonious gray. Seating arrangements are provided to comfortably accomodate four passengers, and when not in use, the folding seat may be set forward out of the way. A large compartment in the rear deck has been provided for packages and parcels.

In the Standard Six Cabriolet, Nash has made a decided advance in the design and construction of cars of this type, the new Cabriolet being not only modish in appearance but a utility car as well. It is a closed car, with top up and open car with top back and windows lowered. In reality, two cars in one.

Bumpers and bumperettes on the Standard Six Cabriolet are standard equipment. The body combination is striking. The hood and rear deck are deep Burgundy as are also the wheels. Below the moulding the body is beige, while the fenders and running gear are black. Contrasting with the color harmony is the Burbank top with nickel trimmings.

Upholstery of the broad front seat and the comfortable rumble seat is of gray leather, rugged, practical and good looking.

Local Lodge Joins in Membership Drive

View of the palatial Neighbors of Woodcraft Home at Riverside, California, recently dedicated by Grand Guardian Minnie Hiner of Portland, in presence of 3000 visitors to district convention in Los Angeles.

A national campaign to increase the membership of the Neighbors of Woodcraft to 100,000 adults during the coming year has just been launched as the aftermath of the dedication of the new $300,000 home for aged members at Riverside, California, September 15, last.

This is being entered into by Robinhood Circle, No. 517 of this city and a large number of candidates are expected within the next few weeks.

In presiding at the ceremonies celebrating the completion of the home, one of the finest and most beautiful of any fraternal organizations in the world, Mrs. Minnie Hiner, grand guardian and supreme officer of the order, reported that the membership had increased to a total of 78,000 adults and 5,000 juveniles, and inspired the 5,000 members in attendance from all parts of the west to initiate the campaign.

Of typical California architecture, the home, on a 60-acre farm, owned by the order, is one of the showplaces of the "Queen City of the Citrus Belt." It includes a magnificent administration building, one of the most completely equipped hospitals on the Pacific Coast, and a dormitory building, in addition to separate structures devoted to a laundry and other operating facilities and a group of 10 model barn buildings. The various buildings are connected with pation esplanades and the grounds are elaborately landscaped.

The completed home represents the combined efforts of members in a dozen western states. The main auditorium and living room was furnished by the circles of Portland, Oregon. A handsome sun parlor and library wa provided by Pueblo circles. A directors' room was furnished by Spokane, Washington circles; a sewing room by members at Cheyenne, and an officers' dining room by San Francisco circles Nearly every one of the 107 bed rooms were furnished by circles in diferent parts of the country

In company with the grand officers, drill teams from Washington, Oregon, Montana, and California, took part in the ceremonies with the mayor and city of officials of Riverside. The dedication of the home followed the biennial district circle convention in Los Angeles, which celebrated the increase of 14 new circles in the district during the two years since the last convention. Long Beach was chosen for the next biennial convention of the Southern California district.

WOODSIDE NOTES

Mr. Hammond of the Hammond Lumber Company, who some time ago purchased the Greer property adjoining Mortimer Fleishacker on the north, has graded a roadway through the property and is preparing to build a handsome residence there. Mr. Avery of Chicago who owns a part of the tract, intends to build later.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Meyer have completed the renovation of their house in Redwood City and will soon move to the new home.

The Woodside Fire Department was called out on Monday morning to fight a fire on the Fitzhugh place at Portola. The fire was in thick brush on a steep hillside adjoining the Alpine road and it took some hard work to get it under control.

The Parent-Teacher Association will offer a Fathers' Night program at the club headquarters on Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hohberger will lead in community singing and a speaker has been arranged for.

Mrs. John D. Gish, who has been for many years the soprano soloist at Trinity Episcopal church in San Francisco, has resigned her position there and will have charge of the music at the Woodside Congregational church. Since the departure of Miss Huddart, the music has been under the charge of Mrs. A. A. Audiffred.

Miss Anna Neff of the Sequoia High School faculty and principal of the nights schools of the Sequoia High district, was a visitor at the Portola branch on Wednesday evening.

Miss Mary Baldwin was married to Mr. McAllister at her father's home here on Tuesday afternoon. About three hundred guests were present at the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Bishop will leave for New York on the 15th. They will remain there about a month and return by way of the Panama canal.

The first paper chase of the autumn will be held by San Francisco and Peninsula equestrians Sunday at Woodside County Club under the direction of Roy Bennett, riding master. The committee in charge includes Bradford M. Melvin, John W. Gilkyson, Mrs. EE. C. Jones, George Gay, Mrs. A. R. Lyon, Mrs. Harold Pracht, Jerome Draper, Dr. Franklin McCormick, Mrs. Marjorie Walters and C. A. Pitts.

J. P. Mitchell, registrar of Stanford University, Mrs. Mitchell, Miss Julia M. Mitchell, and Professor and Mrs. E. A. Cottrell of Stanford University were guests at the Woodside Country Club at dinner Sunday.

HITCHING POSTS MUST GO

The hitching post on the edge of the sidewalk surrounding the courthouse are being removed, the last cestige of another age. The bumpers on the automobiles just touch the posts and the cars are prevented from properly parking. In former days farmers and others coming from Pescadero, Halfmoon Bay, San Mateo, Menlo Park and neighboring peninsula towns would hitch their horses to these posts while transacting business in the courthouse. Faithful old Dobbin's day is past, the automobile has taken his place, the hitching post must go so that the car may be parked without discomfort to the owner. The poor old horse must look dolefully upon these changing conditions, but he may be consoled with the fact that the development of the airplane will soon replace the automobile, where the car is now parked a birdman will be in waiting for his employer. It is not beyond the realms of imagination that the roof of the court house may be so arranged some day to accommodate airplanes from the city and Los Angeles and from the east. A nearby flying field will take care of the monoplanes and bi-planes coming here.

Old Dobbins may then have the horse laugh on the antiquated buzz wagon.

WATCH OIL GAUGE FOR TROUBLE

The oil gauge on your car is a trouble indicator. If the pressure is low after the engine is heated, according to the Free Emergency Road Service of the California State Automobile Association, it may be low oil level, oil pump failure or loose oil lead. If pressure is high, oil may be too heavy or a distributing pipe plugged.

INDIGESTION MAY BE WARNING OF SERIOUS AILMENT

By Charles D. Lockwood, M. D. Pasadena, Calif.

Member Gorgas Memorial

Recognition of the early symptoms of disease and their correct interpretation is called diagnosis and constitutes the highest art in medicine.
Self diagnosis is a dangerous habit for persons to form. The practice of deciding what an ailment is and of undertaking its treatment without proper medical guidance leads to many tragedies. Induced by plausibly written advertisements and encouraged by friends who have had similar ailments, many people will undertake the treatment of their own disease and often sacrifice the most propitious time for the successful management of the ailment. Persons who would not attempt to repair a piece of machinery or to conduct a serious business enterprise will unhesitatingly commit their health to advertising quacks, to cultists, or to half-trained men posing as doctors and discover only too late that they have wsted both opportunity and money.
Self diagnosis and treatment are often the result of a desire to be economical, but in the long run they prove to be expensive treatments. Skilled physicians have patients consult them after a trial of many unproven methods when their money is exhausted and their health so far undermined that little can be done for them. Most people are led to the use of patent medicine and advertised remedies by the false interpretation of their symptoms.
Most diseases begin insidiously with mild symptoms common to many diseases. For example, indigestion or stomach trouble i. induced by a long series of dis eases ranging from the most insignificant to the most serious, and only the finest discrimination by a skilled observer can properly evaluate these early symptoms. Diseases such as ulcer of the stomach, gall bladder disease, appendicitis, intestinal poisoning, tuberculosis, kidney disease, cancer, heart disease, and diseases of the female organs may first show themselves in the form of so-called indigestion. It is obvious that only one familiar with the various manifestations of disease can hope to interpret these symptoms and discover their origin. The absurdity of undertaking their treatment without discovering the source of the reflex disturbance of the stomach must be clear to every thinking person.
The early signs of cancer furnish a guide to the recognition of this dread disease at a time when in many instances it is easily curable by a minor operation. Likewise, the early symptoms of tuberculosis, so often interpreted as bronchitis or a simple cold, are signboards to the physician which point the way to sure and early cure.

LATE HOURS AND IRREGULAR MEALS UNDERMINE HEALTH

By T. Richard Sealy, M. D. Santa Anna, Texas

Member Gorgas Memorial

Good health is the greatest material blessing. It is capital to those who labor and prime esseasoned food, frequent chilling of many make no attempt to keep fit, even though the causes of most cases of poor health are preventable.
Eating at irregular intervals, eating too fast, eating too highly season food, frequent chilling of the stomach with iced drinks, and eating heavy meals while under nervous and mental strain all sooner or later impair digestion and assimilation. Then the body fails to get the proper nourishment and the normal resistance toward disease is lowered, a. is also the ability to supply the normal amount of nervous and muscular energy.
Sleeping is next to eating in the plan of nature to keep the body fit. It is a state of unconsciousness planned by nature to permit the human dynamo to rest and store up energy for the next run. Sleep should therefore be regular and sufficient. At least six hours for adults and more for children out of each twenty-four hours. Tho many of us use many of the hours that properly belong to the body for sleep to keep it fit in indulging in the numerous frivolous social diversions so common to the night life of our country. Only a great crusade for better health, just as the Grogas Memorial has undertaken, can check it. This lack of sleep has much to do with so many not keeping fit.
Constipation so common among women in offices, stores, schools, and most all branches of public work ranks as the cause for not keeping fit.
These are a few of the most common though easily preventable causes for not keeping fit. Ask your family doctor how to avoid them and do so, then you will have accomplished much toward keeping yourself fit.

Sequoia Hi Seniors Enter Essay Contest

The Sequoia Seniors are entering an essay contest sponsored by the Deputations Committee of the University of California, the subject being "My Ideal College."
The judging of the essay will depend on the style of writing, ideas, organization of material and originality.
The essays which will be selected by the English teachers of Sequoia will be sent to the Deputations Committee of the University of California. The judges will select the three best essays from all the schools of California.
Three prizes will be awarded. A ticket to the Stanford-California game held at Stanford, a week's trip to the California University, and an interview with President W. W. Campbell will be the first prize. The second and third awards will be a year's subscription to the Pelican, the University Comic Magazine and a fountain pen.
Raymond Mulford of Sequoia was the winner of a similar contest last year. He was entertained at California the week previous to the big game.

Plan High Speed Road Through California

Plans for a new high speed, double track highway that will cut down the running time between San Francisco and Los Angeles by three hours and a half, have been disclosed here following a conference between representatives of the California Highway Development Association and the Westside Highway Association.
The proposal is to submit the project to the voters at the next general election. Preliminary preparations for a state-wide campaign of education in behalf of the measure are now well under way, it is said. A complete study of the route of the highway, down the Westside of the San Joaquin Valley has been made by the engineering department of the California Highway Commission. A method for the financing of the construction of the road has been worked out by the two organizations, the Westside and the California Highway Development Association, details of which are to be announced in the near future, it is said.
The movement for the Westside Highway Association is being led by Dr. W. W. Goodrich, president of the organization. They have enlisted the support of Senator Roy Fellom, member of the roads and highway committee of the State Senate, who has suggested the method and manner of financing the project, which will perhaps be the biggest thing in road construction ever attempted by any state in the Union.
"This highway will be of the utmost value to all sections of California," said Senator Fellom. "The plan has met with wide favor both here and in the south. There is no uestion but what such a road would do much to bring the north and the south closer together and would greatly stimulate tourist travel to California."
The highway when completed will be unique in the highways of the world, it is declared, and will mark a new era in road building. The plans call for two roadways paralleling each other, thirty feet wide and separated by a strip ten feet wide which can be used as a parking space.
The proposed route of the highway carries it through practically undeveloped territory. The distance between towns will average fully 75 miles. In view of this and the fact that an effort will be made to avoid towns where possible, it is proposed to have no speed limit for the cars traveling this road.
All intersecting highways will be underpassed to add to the public safety. There will be no railroad grade crossings. There will be stretches of highway that will be without a turn or curve for 250 miles. The route of this Westside highway will avoid the Ridge route and its attendant grades, using a low level pass hitherto unused.

WOMEN MOVE IN TO NEW QUARTERS AT SAN QUENTIN

Special to the Times-Gazette

The huddle group of women prisoners crowded into dark cramped quarters built for one-fourth their number at San Quentin are being moved this week into the new sunny sanitary cell block just completed, according to the announcement made by James Holohan, newly appointed warden from Santa Cruz.
New hope is being inspired in the women convicts not only at the prospect of leaving their dark damp congested cell block, built years ago before California had a criminal women problem to accommodate thirty at most where now a hundred are packed in, but also at the promise of being given constructive work.
Tense idle hands, restless dissatisfied brains, and dark strained eyes are all awaiting sun light and work. With the new prison home comes also a vocational director to start a prison industry with the end in view of making the women at least partially self-supporting and prepare them for some post-prison position.
The schooling, exercise, library and training supplied to the 3500 men at San Quentin has been denied the women convicts because of lack of space and facilities.
In the recently constructed women's prison within the grey walls of San Quentin there is space for a garden, and a room for their factory work.
Many are awaiting the opportunity promised to enroll in classes, the chief demands in languages being for Spanish, some are already taking University Extension courses, one woman at least is making considerable strides in a journalism course.

SEQUOIA PLAYS SAN JOSE FRI.

The San Jose footballers are Sequoia's next opponents on the local turf this Friday at 3:30.
With the overwhelming defeat of San Mateo still smarting them the Cherokee gridders are war-hooping it around on the Sequoia stamping ground for their on-coming tussle with Coach Bill Martin's San Jose team.
Little has been heard of San Jose this year. To the Peninsula Athletic League coaches they are pretty much a mystery team.
All of Sequoia's practice games were close. Her gridders started off the season by tasting defeat from Cogswell by a 6-0 score. She evened the count in her next game by trimming Monterey in a 6-0 count. The Cherokees next game ended in a 6-6 tie with the heavy Watsonville team, and they went down to defeat in their last practice game of the season on the dusty Hollister field by a 14-6 score.
With these games behind her Sequoia opened the P. A. L. with San Mateo with visions of a close game, but San Mateo blasted these hopes when she overwhelmed Sequoia 51-0.
Sequoia's batting average in the P. A. L. is .000, but the Indians will attempt to boost it to .5000 when they battle San Jose next Friday.
Sequoia, even in the face of their defeat by San Mateo, is being installed favorite. Coach Dimick's revised squad is:
Ends—Danz, Archibald, Michel and Hamilton.
Tackles—Harper, Enten, Clancy
Guards—Ferran, Kanno, Britschgi.
Centers—Clancy, Chilcott
Quarter—Jansing.
Halfs — Coehlo, Honeyman, Hansen.
Fullbacks—Lintner, Shweikert.

CHAPTER X

—15—

The New Year's festivities and the trade were over at Elkwan. The dance in the sleephouse, for which Etienne, seated high on a sugar barrel, provided the music from an ancient and scarred violin, had passed off without compelling the interference of the factor as peacemaker. The customary present of sugar and flour, tea and pork, had been given to each family of hunters and the Crees had feasted and gossiped to their hearts' content, oblivious of bitter moons to come on far trap-lines when, if game were hard to find, their children would whimper with hunger. The last of the dog-teams had jingled up the river trail or down the delta bound for Akimiski. Thanks to Souci, it had been an unheard-of trade which had come to the little post. Not only had he brought across the ice the Elkwan Crees but some from Kapiskau and Attawapiskat, as well.

For a week Garth and Etienne were busy sorting and pressing the fur, which was to go by sled immediately to Albany.

"Twenty-eight thousand dollars," said the factor as he finished checking his list. "Our little trips inland after Souci and over to the island were rather worth while, my friend."

Etienne grinned. "No leetle post lak' dis evair mak' dat trade on dis bay. Dey geeve you bigger place soon. You tak' Etienne Savanne wid you?"

"Take you with me, you old villain? How could I get along without you? You're responsible for this catch of fur, and you know it."

Savanne gravely shook his head. "Eet was you who tak' de chance on de riviere to fin' Souci. W'en we go to Albanee I tell dem people dat de new man at Elkwan ees hell on catch de fur."

Guthrie stopped to laugh at the serious half-breed. Of the loyalty of his head man, who had taught him practically all he knew about pelts, he had had ample proof.

Down the coast over the sea-ice traveled the sled loaded with the Christmas trade. At Kapiskau, where the early January dusk overtook them, they turned up the delta to the post to pass the night with the surprised Boucher, whose Indians at Akimiski had left him to trade with McDonald.

Starting the following morning under the stars, before the light died, the sled from Elkwan sighted the buildings of Fort Albany.

As Garth and Etienne entered the trade room, Cameron, curious of the result of their mission, called: "Well, well, what's the news from the island? Did you get across the ice?"

"Yes, we got across a week before Christmas, but had a tough time," Guthrie dissembled gravely, nudging Etienne.

"Didn't see how you could do any good going over there. Your man failed to hold any of the Elkwan people, then?" surmised the disappointed Cameron. "Same way with Attawapiskat and Kapiskau—they lost most of their people—went to the schooner. It sure grinds me to think of that McDonald coming in here and taking all that fur."

"Well, he outbids us for it, and it's only human in the Indians to let him have it. How much is the whole island trade worth in an average year, anyway?" suddenly asked Garth.

"Let's see," said Cameron, scratching his grizzled head. "Um, I should say that it runs about two hundred fox skins, all kinds."

"Well, Mr. Cameron," drawled the factor of Elkwan, "I've got half of it out on the sled, then."

"What?" Cameron stared stupidly into the twinkling eyes of the man before him. "Thought you said you didn't—half of it? What d'yuh mean, half of it? Half of what?" sputtered the puzzled trader.

"Why, half of the Akimiski trade. We got a hundred skins."

"You got a hundred—? Why, man, you said you didn't hold 'em—your people. Are you crazy, Guthrie?" cried the excited Cameron.

Unable to contain his mirth, Etienne exploded at the far end of the trade counter, as Garth replied: "You took it for granted that we failed. I didn't say we fell down," chaffed Guthrie.

"For heaven's sake, man, stop your fooling and tell me the truth. Do you mean to say that you've got a hundred fox from Akimiski on that sled out there?" demanded Cameron.

"I do."

"Well—I'll be—skinned alive!" And the dazed trader stood, fists on hips gaping at the grinning Garth and Etienne.

"How in Jehoshaphat did you do it? You got 'em, after all, with Souci?"

"Souci and Etienne, here, scared them to death."

Then, when the fur packs had been brought in and the dogs fed, Guthrie told the story.

"Do you realize, major, that this is the largest Christmas trade ever made by a subsidiary post of Albany? Your scheme and your nerve in seeing it through make the rest up the coast look like pretty dead people. My heartiest congratulations!" The factor of Albany grasped Guthrie's hand.

"The men who turned this trick are Etienne and old Souci," protested Garth. "I don't want you to forget them. I did little."

Cameron slapped the proud half-breed on the back. "No fear of my forgetting Etienne Savanne. He's worked with me too many years. Now I wish you'd listen to what they write from Moose."

The Albany factor went to his desk and, returning with a letter, read to Guthrie:

"The Montreal office has got the idea that this free-trader, McDonald, may be the man wanted in Nova Scotia for a murder committed about three years ago. A returned soldier struck and killed a man supposed to be his wife's lover. He was traced to Newfoundland. According to McMann at Charlton Island, the description of the soldier tallies with the appearance of this Laughing McDonald. I have written Montreal that the schooner is wintering on this coast. I expect the provincial police will show up here soon to investigate."

"Now, what d'you think of that?" demanded Cameron of the man whose thoughts were centered on the homecoming of a soldier with disfigured face— a face repulsive, unbearable to the woman whose weakness had caused the murder.

"There must be ten thousand men in Canada with scarred faces, Cameron. Because Laughing McDonald happens to have one doesn't make him the murderer."

Cameron sensed that the reply had a personal tinge—was in the nature of a defense of the maimed legions, and said quietly: "No, of course not, but this McDonald sailed out of St. Johns. Queer if he should be the bird they're after."

"How many police will they send on this case?"

"Oh, not more than two."

"I'm sorry for them, then. They'd never come back. Do you think that two men can go to that schooner in Seal cove and get McDonald, if he's the guilty man? He wouldn't be taken alive—and I've a notion that life isn't worth much to McDonald Ha! Ha!"

"Why, you seem to sort of sympathize with this pirate who's stealing our trade," objected the other.

The gray eyes of the factor of Elkwan held those of Cameron in a penetrating look, as he said—"I do."

The brooding face of the man with the scarred cheek sought the window. The tragedy of the man at Seal cove, if he proved to be the Nova Scotian soldier wanted by the police, was, he realized, simply the story of Garth Guthrie in an exaggerated form. The wife he had come home to, like Ethel, had turned from the mutilated face—lacked the womanhood to shield him with her heart from the mockery of an unfeeling world. How many of the Canadian maimed, he wondered, the broken, the crippled, had walked in Gethsemane with Garth Guthrie and Laughing McDonald? How many had seen veiled horror in the eyes of those they loved?

"Well, I sympathize with any man whose wife goes wrong," the voice of Cameron went on, after a pause, "but that don't justify murder, Guthrie."

"I'm not so sure," was the quiet response, "when a man comes home with a comic mask for a face, that he isn't justified in killing both his wife and the man she turns to. Put yourself in his place, Cameron. Even the children on the streets must have mocked him as he passed. Think of the hell he lived through—then she, his refuge and his anchor—falls him."

Again Cameron felt that the man championing the unknown McDonald was making the case his own. That Guthrie was sensitive of his scarred cheek he already was aware and it irritated the older man into blurting outright: "Guthrie, don't take offense at what I'm going to say, but it seems to me that you must be vain as a girl to have that scar always on your mind. Why, man, you're handsome enough to carry a dozen scars. Nobody ever thinks of it, except to envy your war record."

Guthrie's mouth curled slightly in answer: "Man, I've forgotten all about that scar, but I can't forget the men who were not so lucky."

But as Cameron's hand left the shoulder of the factor of Elkwan, he was sure that the furrow across the cheek of the younger man had played its part in a personal tragedy.

* * * * * * *

As Guthrie left the trade house to seek his room at Cameron's hospitable quarters and make himself presentable for the supper on which Mrs. Cameron would spare no effort, he turned for a short stroll across the clearing. He was approaching the mission when the fur-hooded figure of a woman passed him at a short distance on a parallel path. The face in the hood was turned from him but the swinging stride of the moccasined feet aroused his curiosity. The white women residents of the post could be counted on the fingers of a hand. It was a stranger—a new missionary teacher at the orphan Indian school, doubtless. At the mission the paths met, and Guthrie turned with a "good evening," as the woman in the fur capote came abreast, to gasp, with a furiously pounding heart, as he looked into the laughing eyes of Joan Quarrier.

"You! Here?" he exclaimed, gazing at the uptilted hood as if at a ghost.

"Welcome to Albany, Mr. Exile," she cried, extending a mittened hand. "I've just left Mrs. Cameron, and knew of your arrival with that fabulous amount of fur. Congratulations on your defeat of Laughing McDonald."

"You—wintering at Albany," he continued, 'and you never told me!"

The color rose to the dark hair on her forehead. "I found a job. You see they needed a nurse terribly, at the school." Her eyes avoided his searching look now. "My brother returns in the spring, so I decided to wait for him here."

"But when I left, you were leaving in a day or two for Moose," he relentlessly persisted. "And you wrote my Christmas letter and never told me you were only ninety miles away," he added reproachfully.

"I—I couldn't interfere with the—your fight for the fox trade," she replied weakly.

"Well, the fact is, Miss Joan Quarrier," he said with a laugh, "that you're here at Albany, and I'm at Albany, and I hereby announce that I'm going to stay a day, or two, or three, and talk to you."

"I'm sure," she said with a low bow, "that you are most flattering. But you forget that my employer, Mr. Swan, does not approve of you, sir."

"All the worse for Swan, then, for I'm going to see you tomorrow morning, afternoon, and evening, Swan or no Swan. I am a masterful man and will have my way. What time tonight do I knock on the door of the Reverend Swan?" With all his eyes Garth was caressing the face which had come to him by the fire in the snow, followed him over the tundra of Akimiski, companioned his dreams. The miracle of her being here—to talk to—look at, when he had thought her south across the forests! And why had she stayed on in the dreary north?

"I think you could come up tonight." Joan's teeth flashed in an alluring smile. "I'll try to reconcile Mr. Swan to the bitter dose of your presence. He needs me here, you know—finds my experience valuable."

Removing his mitten, with a quick movement Garth slipped off the mitten of the surprised girl and took her hand. "I need you here," he said, "as well as Swan. Eight o'clock tonight!" And walked swiftly away, mad hope in his brain, his emotions out of hand.

Why had she stayed? Why had she stayed? he kept asking himself as he hurried to Cameron's house.

At supper at the Camerons' Guthrie said: "I met an old friend on the clearing tonight."

The kindly eyes of the factor's wife grew quizzical as they met the glance of her guest. "She was here when Etienne came to the kitchen and told us of your success. What did you do to that girl last September? She and I have talked a lot about you this winter."

Guthrie's heart warmed to the inference. He felt the blood in his face, and strove to cover his embarrassment with the question: "How did she come to stay and help that effigy of a man, Swan?"

Mrs. Cameron smiled. "They were dreadfully in need of some one who had training. Half the children had some ailment and Swan and his wife were at their wits' end. I suppose Joan couldn't resist the call, as her brother was to return to the bay in the spring."

"Did you meet him?" asked Garth.

"Oh, yes, they ate here several times. Very important person—the doctor!"

"Ah-h!" This from Cameron.

"What's the matter," laughed Garth. "Didn't you like him?"

"Like him? It was all I could do to keep my hands off that rooster," growled the lord of Albany. "He made a formal protest in writing to the company to the effect that he had been insulted by you and that you refused to get his stuff on Akimiski, but I told them at Moose what I thought of him."

Garth was grateful to Cameron for his omission of other details of Quarrier's charges, which he knew Joan had scornfully demolished.

"Well, Miss Quarrier is not responsible for her brother. Could I bring her over from the Mission tonight? Swan almost kicked me out in September."

"Why, of course, Major Guthrie. I was going to ask you to," said Mrs. Cameron. "The poor child has a dreary enough time with the Swans. They've been worrying about her soul, you know, because of her liberal views on religion."

After supper Garth hurried over the trail to the mission.

If Garth Guthrie had been susceptible to withering looks from a reverend gentleman whose meager frame stiffened uneasily in the black cloth and clerical collar affected by Mr. Swan, he would have been embarrassed at the chilly reception extended to him when he said:

"Good evening, Mr. Swan! I have come to take Miss Quarrier over to the Camerons' for the evening."

"You, sir," indignantly replied the missionary, "have put yourself beyond the pale—have no right to the society of pure women."

Hands on hips, for a space Garth smiled good-naturedly down on the greatly excited Swan, struggling heroically with the part his conscience bade him play. Then he said quietly: "Swan, if you choose to believe the nonsense with which Qarrier has filled your peanut brain, there is no law to prevent it. But Miss Quarrier has had opportunity to judge and she doesn't believe it. She is also her own mistress and capable of determining her own actions. She is going to the Camerons' with me now. Tell her I'm here!"

The last was spoken with such cold vehemence that Reverend Swan instinctively drew back, fearing bodily harm. But the little man was stubborn. "Miss Quarrier was placed under my protection by her brother. I have a duty—"

"Oh, is that you, Mr. Guthrie?" called a feminine voice from somewhere in the building. "Just a minute! I'm putting on my coat."

"Miss Quarrier," announced the red-faced missionary, aware that the situation was swiftly slipping from his control, "I forbid you walking to the Camerons' with this man."

"Oh, Mr. Swan! You can't be really serious," said Joan, appearing in a doorway. "Mrs. Cameron expects me and I'm sure my reputation is good enough to survive the walk there with Mr. Guthrie." She was talking as one coaxes a child, and Guthrie bit his lips in an attempt to stifle a laugh.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Carr Doesn't Think He Has Reached the "Roof"

Sabin W. Carr, the sandy-haired Yale junior who startled the athletic world by pole vaulting 14 feet in the intercollegate championships, doesn't think he has reached the "roof" yet, by any means.

"It felt kind of funny up there, when I finally made it," he said, discussing his sensational feat at Philadelphia. "But after it was all over I wondered why it hadn't been done before. Maybe I can go a little higher. That mark certainly isn't the limit for pole vaulters. Anyway, although I suppose there has been a bit of psychology in previous failures to make 14 feet—it sounded kind of impossible to a lot of folks."

Carr evidently looks on 14 feet only as a step on the way up, for he had the bar raised after his record-breaking feat and set sail for 14 feet 2½ inches of altitude. This proved a little too much, however, and he was forced to call it a day at 14 feet.

Sailing over this amount of space with the aid of a slim bamboo pole is a far cry from Carr's more youthful days, when he struggled to clear six feet with the aid of a clothes pole on the sands of the beach at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Barnard's New Job

E. S. Barnard, now president of the Cleveland Indians, is to succeed Ban B. Johnson as president of the American Baseball league in November, according to reliable reports from baseball circles.

Barnard, it is said, had been offered and has accepted a three-year contract at $40,000 per year.

It was also stated that when Barnard takes over the new job he will announce the sale of the Cleveland club by Mrs. James Dunn of Chicago to a syndicate of Clevelanders headed by Alva Bradley, capitalist and banker.

Bill Carrigan Says Game Is Somewhat Different

Bill Carrigan, manager of the Boston Red Sox who was on the retired list since 1916 until he resumed the direction of this season's team, finds the game somewhat different. Bill says: "The game is more simplified than it used to be. They used to play for runs by ones and twos in the old days. Now they go out for 'em in larger quantities, three and four. In these days the teams look for the big inning and the batting explosion that blows the lid off the game, where formerly we were more patient and systematic in gathering our runs. The bunt is no longer the dangerous little weapon it used to be. The sacrifice is still used when a game is tight, but the ball jumps off the bat with such force these days that it's a big risk to try any of the subtle stuff."

Spectator's Friendly Act Ousts Golf Player

A remarkable incident occurred in the Scottish Golf Union's northern boys' championship at the Royal Aberdeen links recently, resulting in the disqualification of J. Scott Riddell of the Duff House club, Banff. Riddell had returned a score 14 strokes better than the next competitor.

He played a shot in the second round and found his ball close to a gorse bush. A spectator, without Riddell's consent, kicked and uprooted a part of the gorse. Riddell consequently had a clear shot at his ball, and for this he was disqualified.

The incident has no parallel in competitive golf.

Army Grid Team Not So Strong, Says Garbisch

Army's football team will not be as strong this year as it was last, in the opinion of Edgar Garbisch, captain of the great 1924 Cadet eleven.

Garbisch is no longer in the service, having resigned a year after his graduation, but he still keeps a close tab on things at West Point and usually makes it a point during the football season either to scout for his old team or to run up from New York a few days each week and help coach.

Garbisch's estimate of this year's team was a bit surprising since those terrors of the backfield, Wilson, Cagle, Hewitt and Murrell, are all back. The line, however, has been hard hit by graduation.

Sport Notes

The average age of the United States Davis Cup players is 34½ years. Tilden was born in February, 1893; Johnston in November, 1894; Williams in January, 1891, and Hunter in June, 1894.

* * *

"The 1927 football season on the Pacific coast will be one of the hardest fought in many years," said Pop Warner, Stanford football coach, who returned recently from a two months' trip East.

Make Big Money in Swimming

If you would meet Dame Fortune face to face wear a swimming suit.

Gertrude Ederle set the style when she swam the English channel last summer. She was immediately deluged with theatrical and motion picture contracts, and, because her father was a butcher, she was honored by the meat dealer associations throughout the country.

Gertrude Ederle.

Then came Mrs. Millie Gade Corson, who also swam the channel and collected for it with vaudeville tours.

George Young, the young Toronto swimmer, was next to be chosen by the fickle Dame Fortune, writes H. H. Barcus in the Detroit News. He swam the Catalina island channel, received a big cash prize and toured the country in vaudeville.

Now we have Ernst Vierkotter, a German swimmer, who last year made the English channel swim in 12 hours and 42 minutes. He was an amateur at the time and did not collect on the race. He turned pro recently, competing in and winning the Toronto swim for which he received a prize of $30,000, and in a few days he had contracts for vaudeville, motion pictures, writing books, advertising various articles, phonograph records and other things aggregating $145,000.

Ernst Vierkotter.

Before he is through, it is likely he will clean up a quarter of a million dollars.

Vierkotter is twenty-seven years old, stands 5 feet 11½ inches in height and weighed 182 pounds when he entered the Toronto swim. He lost 12¾ pounds in the race.

The new swimming champion, the only one to win two international races, has only one good eye. His right eye was punched out when he was a child by a hat pin in the hands of his young sister.

"Shamateurism" Called Tennis' Chief Menace

"Shamateurism" is the greatest menace in the world to good tennis, in the opinion of Charles B. Cochran, who has been managing Suzanne Lenglen and other professional tennis stars on a tour through England.

"Professionalism will do no more harm to tennis than it has to golf, cricket, football and baseball," said Cochran. "The all-important thing is to keep amateurism and professionalism entirely separate, and not to have purported amateurs camouflage their professionalism."

Professional tennis has brought great tennis within the reach of the masses, so Cochran says, and since municipalities have encouraged tennis playing so generally by providing courts there is universal desire to see good tennis at a low cost. This was impossible with strictly amateur matches.

"At Glasgow a crowd of 15,000 sat through a rain to watch Mlle. Lenglen and her associates in professional tennis," Cochran asserted. "This is said to be the largest crowd that ever attended a tennis match."

Major League Star Also Is Reporter in Winter

Johnny Neun, Detroit Tiger first baseman, is a baseball player in the summer and a reporter in the winter.

As soon as he doffs his Tiger uniform he hurries to his desk on the Baltimore Sun. At odd times he refereees and writes about soccer games. He also is a basket ball official.

Neun has been in many spectacular plays this season. He turned in the only unassisted triple play in the American league.

In a seven-inning game he stole five bases and made five hits, all singles. During a double-header with New York he stole home in each game, the second time under the eagle-eyed Herb Pennock.

Walker Invincible

Notwithstanding Mickey Walker's decisive victory over Tommy Milligan, there are quite a host of Britons ready to tackle the world's champion on reasonable terms. Their eagerness is due to a remark passed by Charles B. Cochran that there is not a boxer in Europe capable of defeating Walker. Cochran's estimate of the situation while probably true, is rather quite broad and Walker may run into a snag of some kind.

Helen Jacobs Changes

Helen Jacobs, one of California's leading tennis players and a Berkeley girl, may enter Stanford university in January. The reason of the change from University of California, where Miss Jacobs was a freshman, is said to be because Stanford opens in October and California in August. By making the change in colleges Miss Jacobs will be free to play tennis in September, when many important tourneys are scheduled to be played off.

Gas for Limekilns

The first gas-burning limekilns set up in the United States were those at Knowles in Wisconsin. Similar installations had been made abroad, but were never introduced into the United States except in isolated instances. Coal is supplied to a gas producer, being fed automatically from the bunkers every 15 minutes.

The owner of the plant states that his innovation has resulted in the saving in the cost of manufacture of about ten cents for every barrel of lime produced. The plant produces about 400 bushels a day, which would be a large capacity for a wood-burning kiln.

DEVICE RESTORES FLOW OF BLOOD

Will Renew Circulation, Is Doctor's Claim

Vienna.—According to a Vienna telegram a Viennese doctor has invented an apparatus which, while it has not yet succeeded in awakening the dead, has nevertheless induced circulation of the blood in the body of a person dead for some hours. The apparatus is electrically driven and is applied to the stomach.

The massage affected by means of the machine causes the muscles and blood vessels of the stomach to vibrate sufficiently to re-establish circulation. Doctor Eisenmenger, the inventor, had hitherto only applied his invention to persons who were almost dead as the result of asphyxiation or drowning, and who were in need of artificial respiration.

Now, however, it has been tried on a person dead for two hours. A woman of 40, who fell from a third-floor window, died on her way to the hospital. Two hours after death the apparatus was set in motion. A liter of salt water was injected in the arm. After half an hour the blood began to circulate under the skin; the pulse beat and the cheeks showed that in the veins was flowing not the red blood of a living person but the blue blood of the dead. It is true there was no sign of awakening, but this is not the object of Doctor Eisenmenger's invention, which is designed simply to re-establish circulation of the blood.

In the case of a person who is apparently dead, if both artificial respiration and circulation of the blood by the new method are resorted to, the chances of success should be increased. A powerful drug might also be added to the saline solution injected. Further experiments are to be made with artificial respiration and an injection of adrenaline administered at the same time as the massage is applied, and there is great curiosity in Vienna as to the results.

FARM LAND VALUES SHOW DECREASE

Washington.—Farm real estate values continued to tumble during the crop year just ended, marking a continual depreciation during the last seven years, the Department of Agriculture said recently, adding that there are plenty of farms for sale with buyers few and cautious.

Present values are about at the level of 1917 values, being placed at 119 per cent of the prewar level, while 1920 values were 169 per cent above the prewar figure. The decline in the last year was not to be wholly unexpected, according to the department, on account of the marked decrease during the year in the price of certain of our major farm products, the sharp drop in farmers' incomes, and a generally inactive farm real estate market.

The South Atlantic states showed the largest decline, being 137 compared with 148 in 1926, and 198 in 1920. In other state divisions values were:

East North Central, 103 against 110 in 1926 and 159 in 1920; West North Central, 115 against 121 and 184; East South Central, 133 against 139 and 199; West South Central, 139 against 144 and 177; Middle Atlantic, 111 against 113 and 136; Mountain, 101 against 103 and 151; New England, 127 against 128 and 140, and Pacific, 143 against 144 and 156.

Values for the United States as a whole have gone down 50 points, from 169 in 1920 to 119 in 1927.

Shops Under Street

London has adopted the idea of having a shopping center beneath the street, several shops having been opened on passageways to subway stations beneath Piccadilly circus. Jewelry and women's and men's apparel shops are among those established. Electric stairways to the upper outside levels are to be installed. During the digging, parts of fossilized trees and a fossil oyster shell were found, indicating that the district was once under the sea.

Find Throws Light on Old Times and Customs

Kitchen utensils of the Greeks and Romans of the Fourth century, B. C., have just come to light at Canopus, near one of the mouths of the Nile, according to Prof. Ralph Van Deman Magoffin, president of the Archeological Institute of America. Excavation at a temple near this site has yielded up mementos or offerings left by thousands of pilgrims that make clear many phases of life in antiquity. The collections include many kitchen utensils and a nearly complete set of Greek and Roman weights. Many of them are tokens vowed by soldiers who hoped for success in war. "Some are sling shots," explained Doctor Magoffin, "while many are tiny replicas of the soldiers themselves on elephant or horseback. Grain baskets and camels seem to have been the favorite gifts from merchants; weights from looms are found in considerable numbers. Many of the pieces are unique, and their publication and exhibition will add much more to our growing knowledge of ancient times."

Half Century Since Birth of "Tom Sawyer"

That perennial American boy, "Tom Sawyer," is fifty years old and literary societies of the country are celebrating the birth of Mark Twain's incorrigible pen child, an event which marked a distinct epoch in American literature. While his stories of "Tom" and "Huckleberry Finn" established Mark Twain's genius in the eyes of later-day critics, his worldwide reputation as a humorist had been achieved almost ten years before they gained wide circulation, A. H. Espenshade recalls, writing a biographical sketch of Mark Twain in St. Nicholas Magazine.

His "Innocents Abroad," a collection of newspaper letters sent back during his trip to Europe and the Holy land, was published in 1869, and by that date his popularity and royalties were rivaling even those of modern best-seller authors. On a single lecture tour he earned $8,000 and the royalties on "Innocents Abroad" reached $6,000 in the first six months.

Impure Blood Brings Age

Impurities seeping into the blood fluid from bad or excess food in the digestive tract are the real cause of "old age," according to Dr. Leonard Williams, British physician. They adulterate the "plasma"—the watery yellowish fluid in which the blood's red-and-white corpuscles float—and hinder its waste-removing duties, he says.

Light eating, short fasts and attention to food quality will help postpone old age, Doctor Williams asserts.—Popular Science Monthly.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

BRAGGADOCIO

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"YOUTH with its innocent boastings" is the way Alfred Noyes puts it. We are all hero-worshipers, and youth possibly more than old age; and worshiping the hero, we want to be like him; and wanting to be like him, we cast ourselves in his role. All of which is an adequate explanation of the boastings of youth. The boaster is ambitious; he would like to arrive, but, too often, he has the ambition without the persistence and the energy to attain his ambition.

I had a long letter from Bob a short time ago, written irregularly across the page with a pencil, reasonably legible but not always accurate. Bob is ten, and his ambition is to be an athlete. Red Grange and Harold Osborne and Pug Daugherity and Spike Rue are his heroes. There are a good many things of general interest going on in his family, but he makes no reference to these in his letter. His grandmother is seriously ill, but that is a matter of which he makes no mention in his communication.

It is of his athletic accomplishments that he writes. He can dive deeper and swim farther and stay under the water longer than any other boy of his age in town. Some day he intends to swim the English channel or the Atlantic ocean. Nothing in aquatic sports is beyond him. Just now he is giving his mornings to pole vaulting and to high jumping. He has not attained the height reached by Brownell, but he is coming along—six feet two, I believe, is the record, and with practice he expects to do even better. We used to say that children were untruthful; now we admit that they are ambitious and have imagination, and Bob is letting his imagination help out distance, no doubt.

Not all people boast of the same things. Warren wants to be a social star; he would like to be a knight with fair ladies breaking their hearts for love of him, so he boasts of his conquests, of the girls who write him sentimental notes and call him up on the telephone in an effort to make social engagements with him. The girls are crazy about him, he says, and in saying so he makes himself the sort of hero he would like to be.

Samuels would like to hobnob with the rich and the great, and especially with the great, so he tells casually of "Last week when I was in Washington, President Coolidge said to me," as if he and the President were in the habit of having regular confidential talks with each other. He speaks of "my friend Douglas Fairbanks" or it may just as well be Senator Owen or Secretary Kellogg, or anybody of distinction whom Samuels has met, or has even had a passing glace at. It is pure boasting, of course, but it makes Samuels feel a good deal nearer to what he would like to be than he has really allowed.

We all boast a little, and by boasting, reveal our ambition.

Beheading Ax That Never Worked, Relic

London. — Visitors to the British home office in Whitehall still see a relic of the Cato street conspiracy in 1820, in a beheading ax which is kept in a glass case.

The ax has never beheaded anyone, but it was made to behead the conspirators. The five persons convicted were sentenced to be beheaded in the ordinary way, but the authorities decided to hang them first and not take any chances. The beheading was done in public immediately afterward on the scaffold. It was performed with a surgeon's amputating knife by a masked "resurrection man" who was paid 20 guineas for his services.

Buried Treasure Hunt Plan of Morgan's Kin

San Francisco.—Louis Morgan, descendant of Sir Henry Morgan, notorious pirate of the Seventeenth century, recently was preparing to go to Central America in search of loot Sir Henry's followers carried after they had sacked the city of Panama in 1671, and were said by tradition to have buried on a bayou near Darien bay in the present republic of Panama.

Morgan, son of Frank Pierce Morgan, the district attorney of Victoria, Texas, and Capt. A. Pearson, veteran skipper on both the Atlantic and the Pacific, have joined in the venture. The men have launched the 40-foot auxiliary launch Saxon for the voyage.

London Built on Sand, News Scares Populace

London.—London has discovered that its house is builded upon the sand. Not since the German air raids of ten years ago has there been such trepidation over the possibility of a catastrophe.

In the last few weeks a half dozen buildings in various parts of the city have crumbled and fallen to the ground, great holes have opened in the streets and a tremendous cavity was found beneath Piccadilly, which is in course of reconstruction.

London builders have made application for a revision of the standard form of agreement between builders and architects, and the national physical laboratory is studying the effects of vibration on buildings.

The top thirty feet of London's surface ground is composed of shifting strata in which endless subterranean burrowings has gone on and on. Underground London is full of streams and water has been drained from one place to another in such a way that the water-bearing strata is constantly shifting, and making hidden chasms.

Invisible Searchlight Penetrates Smoke

Washington. — An invisible searchlight, which is claimed to be capable of penetrating fog and rendering naval and military smoke screens useless in warfare, has been invented by a Scotchman named Baird, the Commerce department was advised by a consul, Finley A. Lindbergh.

"Noctovision" is the name given the device, which is said to have a penetrating power sixteen times greater than a beam of ordinary light through fog or smoke.

African Natives in Constant Conflict With Fierce Animals

Cape Town, South Africa.—Prowling man-eating lions which enter native kraals and carry off men, women and children are causing serious concern in Uganda. According to the report of the game department, 33 natives were killed in three months and the warden states that in several instances he operated successfully against the lions by using poison, the difficulty of shooting being enhanced by the roughness of the country and the density of the bush, according to Frank Burton in the Chicago Tribune.

The report contains remarkable instances of the sagacity of the man-eaters. One was discovered invariably to accompany a herd of elephants. This not only made the tracing of the beast impossible but enabled it to capture the natives who went out to drive the elephants from their plantations.

The natives, the report states, are doing remarkably good work in wiping out what has become a serious pest and cases are on record of a chief and a party of natives in the village of Kyagwe tracking half a dozen lions to the rocky hills where, with the aid of nets and beaters, they were speared and killed.

Natives, however, are adverse to the use of the traps which are issued by the department. The reason is that these traps need careful attention and must be sprung by day. Otherwise vultures, marabout storks and secretary birds come down to the bait and fall victims. The natives, knowing that these creatures are protected, are afraid to kill them and so let them loose, handicapped with broken limbs, to die a lingering death.

"Once the lion has lost its instinctive fear of man," the warden declares, "it becomes a menace hard to eradicate."

Crocodile Also Menace.

The report adds that crocodiles are included among other man-eaters and that hippopotamus is becoming more aggressive towards human beings.

There are areas on some of the lakes where these animals are a perfect menace to the occupants of canoes; while in others they have developed the unpleasant habit of attacking, unprovoked, any person they encounter on land at night, particularly people carrying lamps. The mangled state of the victims testifies to the arrant savagery of the attack.

Dealing with the control of large herds of elephants which roam the Uganda wilds, the report states that in recent years official elephant hunters have been appointed, but the measures taken against the animals have made them cunning to the extreme.

"The silence with which a number of elephants will raid a plantation is uncanny," it is said by hunters.

The elephant hunters' work is full of danger. In Bunyoro, for instance, the shooting has to be carried out from trees and the hunters are often knocked from their perches into the headlong flight of a herd of elephants after a shot has been fired.

The report refers to the feat of a ranger who bagged three elephants with one round of .256 ammunition. It occurred in tall grass, where, after a stern chase, a herd of elephants was seen to ascend the opposite hill slope.

The ranger, seeing that the elephants were likely to pass a tiny opening in the grass about 250 yards away, fixed his rifle in a convenient fork of a tree and waited. An elephant emerged from the cover into the open space and with a bullet through the heart dropped dead. The great carcass slid down the hillside, crashing open a wide lane through the grass.

Vanish Into Chasm.

A second elephant appeared and received a bullet near the heart, which did not kill it, but caused it to fall down. The steepness of the slope prevented it regaining its feet and in its turn this animal began to slide down the course taken by the first.

A third elephant now stepped into the lane just below number two, which had now gained considerable momentum and which swept the third elephant off its feet and together the two disappeared into the chasm of the valley, not before, however, a fourth elephant had attempted to cross the lane and was caught in the avalanche of bodies.

Fine Roast Beef retains all its juice and flavor in a refrigerator cooled by

All meats derive their flavors from their juices. Even a little drying out will tend to lessen the flavor. And meat kept in too dry a temperature, regardless of how cold it may be, will lose both weight and flavor.

That explains why many butchers have gone back to ICE after trying other forms of refrigeration. The ICE-COOLED refrigerator is neither too dry nor too moist. It gives exactly the right temperature, plus the right humidity.

Remember, Only Ice Does This! For preserving foods in the home, experience has demonstrated that ICE is dependable, economical and that it gives better results than any known form of refrigeration.
